

Nina Blodau, a unique and notable designer, has distinguished herself as a creator and artist in the past years. Nina, who comes from a family of renowned artists and designers, has an extensive background and history in the trade, and has been influenced from an early age. She and her brother have taken on numerous commissions for murals, a recent one on the Dairmuid Galvin show 'I want a Garden,' proving themselves as respected and talented professionals.

Distinctive Styles...

Nina Blodau Interiors

Nina integrates her love of fine art into her own style of interior design, which is versatile and transitional, influenced by various surroundings and environments. When working with a client, she never imposes her own personal style, but combines their preferences and her expertise, creating an idealistic home or workplace. Her job as a designer involves helping others to discover their own style, to find what colours and schemes captivates them when creating their perfect space.

Having took part in RTE 'Show-House' in 2007, her stunning designs made a lasting impression and were voted to win by the public.

Light shades of pastels coloured her rooms, some of which were infused with works of exquisite art, others were spacious and simple, with tones of soft rose or egg-shell blue creating a tranquil air.

From looking at these finishing touches, we can see why Nina is such a success in her work. This was not gained overnight though, and came from years of practised experience, which included a diploma in interior design. Between then and launching herself independently, she worked in many related fields of design, broadening her knowledge and understanding of the work.

Nina supports and stands by her customer's decisions every step of the way, whether it is a little advice on changing colours in a single room or to a total refurbishment of your house.

She gained valuable hands-on experience in a small, complete fit out company that dismantled, redesigned and reconstructed furniture. It was here she learnt not to rely on items that were readily available but to create distinctive styles, and to gain insight into the effects of light, colour and space. Nina is a step above others in her field, due to her flowing artistic talent and the inspiring pieces and designs that result from it.
